

ROS Localization

The ROS Localization uses laser sensor data to track the position of the mobile platform in a previously recorded map. For creating the map, this node starts a Simultaneous Localization and Mapping algorithm which records the surroundings while pushing or driving the mobile platform through the working environment.